Aberdeen Ramblers
Energy Walk
28th February 2016
Forvie National Nature Reserve

Seven of our members took part in the walk on a beautiful sunny morning. The walk took us along the cliff top past Hackley Bay to the ruins of the village of Forvie which disappeared under the sands in the sixteenth century. We then walked back through the sand dunes to the visitor centre. These dunes are the fifth largest sand dune system in Britain and the least disturbed by human activity.
